Danced in a Coal Mine.

Some years ago a Newcastle (England) coal operator named Brandling gave a famous ball. The ballroom was in the coal mine, 1,100 feet below ground, in the shape of the letter L, the width being 15 feet, the height 48 feet and the length 300 feet. The floor was dried and flagged, seats provided and the whole place illuminated with wax candles. The company comprised all the miners and their families, the proprietors and agents and a number of guests from London. It required considerable courage for some of the strangers to go down the shaft, but they all ventured. Dancing was from noon till 3 p. m., and all returned to the upper air clean and safe and each carrying as a memento a piece of coal hewn from the end of the drift.

Preparing For the Future.

"He drinks heavily."
"I know it."
"He gambles."
"I am going to marry him to reform him."
"My girl, listen to me. Try one experiment before you do that."
"What experiment?"
"Take in a week's washing to do and see how you like it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Just Like Poker.

Wife—You know that Mrs. Newcomb moved in down the street Monday, so I called today. Hub—Well, well! How like poker this "social game" is. Wife—How do you mean? Hub—Why, in poker you also call when you want to see what the other person has.—Boston Transcript.

Nothing to Pay For.

"When are you going to pay me that 6s. 8d. you owe me?" asked an attorney of one of his acquaintances.
"What 6s. 8d.?"
"The 6s. 8d. for the opinion you had of me."
"Faith, I never had any opinion of ye!"—London Globe.

Mutual Satisfaction.

"What is this? A portrait of Dauber by himself, eh? Seems a queer idea for a man to paint his own portrait."
"A good idea, however. It is the surest way to have the artist and the sitter both satisfied."—Kansas City Journal.

Building a Poem.

"Any man on earth can be a poet if he tries," said a speaker at a bankers' banquet, "and there never was a better evidence than when the provost of Dundee died. It seems that the provost had been a fine man. His four deputies mourned him greatly, and after the funeral they all got together and decided that they should write him an epitaph."
"It was a hard matter to decide just how four men could write an epitaph, but it was finally settled by the agreement that the inscription should be a verse of four lines, each man to write a line. And so they started. The first man wrote his line. The second man scratched his head and then added his line to the first. The third man thought long, but finally got his inspiration and put down his line. Then the fourth, after much deliberation, made the final rhyme, and the epitaph ran something like this:

"Here lies the provost of Dundee,
Here lies him, here lies he,
Hallelujah, hallelujah,
A-B-C-D-E-F-G!"
—Chicago Tribune.

Spelling Shakespeare's Name.

E. H. Sothern in an article in a magazine on the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy gives the Baconians a sound drubbing. Because Shakespeare spelled his name in various ways the Baconians have been pleased to refer to him as a "barbarian." Here is what Mr. Sothern says on the subject of the spelling of the name:

"This is one assertion that is not denied. It is also true that Sir Walter Raleigh, admittedly one of the most cultured men of the time, spelled his name 'Rauley,' 'Rauleigh,' 'Ralegh' and 'Raleigh.' Sir Philip Sidney frequently signed himself 'Sydney,' while Spenser often wrote 'Spencer.' Take any of Shakespeare's contemporaries, and we find the same thing. Marlowe's name occurs in ten different spellings, Throckmorton's in sixteen, Gascoigne's in nineteen, Percy's in twenty-seven, while Ben Jonson wrote his in almost every imaginable form."

A Good Retort.

A Spaniard was traveling from San Sebastian to Biarritz in a first class compartment with an American.

"You Spaniards are a great nation," the American said. "But I can't understand how a nation that produced Velasquez and Valdes can stomach the savage cruelty of the bullfight."

The Spaniard rolled his black eyes at this, inhaled a great cloud of cigarette smoke and said:

"You have in America a number of societies for the prevention of cruelty to children, I believe?"

"Yes."

"And they do good work?"

"Oh, splendid work!"

Now the Spaniard showed his white teeth in a smile.

"Well, senor, such societies would be useless in my country," he said.

"The man who would lift his hand against a little child has not been born in Spain!"—Los Angeles Times.

Mental Twilight.

Mental health passes into mental disease most commonly in a gradual way, as light passes into darkness. There is a mental twilight, a borderland in which it is impossible to say whether the patient is mentally ill or not. It is always well for a man who undergoes such changes mentally to consult his doctor, and it is always well for the doctor not to make too light of such a change because treatment is usually far more effectual in that borderland stage than it is when the symptoms have been fully developed. The best test of mental health is when a man feels a conscious sense of organic well being, although many persons go through life with more or less of a sense of ill being all the time and are not on that account to be regarded as insane.

Acoma's Queer Graveyard.

What is perhaps the most remarkable graveyard in the United States adjoins the old Spanish church in the ancient Indian pueblo of Acoma, N. M., and took more than forty years to construct. The village is situated high in the air upon a huge, flat topped rock, many acres in extent and entirely bare of soil. In order to create the graveyard it was necessary to carry up the earth from the plain 300 feet below, a blanketful at a time, on the backs of Indians who had to climb with their heavy loads up a precipitous trail cut in the face of the cliff. The graveyard thus laboriously constructed is held in place on three sides by high retaining walls of stone.—Wide World Magazine.

Got Through.

Among other startling statements in her composition on "A Railway Journey" the following was made by a little Baltimore girl:

"You must get a ticket, which is a piece of paper, and you give it to a man, who cuts a hole in it and lets you pass through."—New York Herald.

Her First Thought.

Ella—What a dreamer she is! Stella—I should say so! When I told her about an accident in which a poor fellow lost both of his legs she said that that was too bad, as he would not be able to leave any footprints on the sands of time.—Judge.

The National Game.

"You say baseball is your national game," said the stranger, "but what is your national pastime in winter?"
"Politics."—Chicago Record-Herald.
